

Nutmeg has been very busy planting seeds to make cress heads.

Nutmeg was very excited to be growing some seeds.
He decided to grow cress seeds to make 'cress heads' as cress grows really quickly.
Here he is with his packet of seeds.

First he drew some faces onto the empty egg shells. He got the eggs from my chickens.
Nutmeg had been helping to look after my chickens. They lay lovely eggs every day.
They also like to sunbathe when it is hot!

Then he sprinkled the seeds into the egg shells, he put a little bit of paper towel into the shell for the seeds to grow on.
He had to be very careful as the seeds were very tiny.

After that he watered the seeds. I had to help him as the watering can was a bit heavy. I also didn't want a soggy squirrel running around the garden!!

Nutmeg watered the seeds every day. After a few days the seeds started to grow.
Nutmeg was very excited when the cress started to grow above the edge of the shells.
He thought the egg heads looked very funny with green hair!
Nutmeg thought he would feed the cress to the chickens as they had given him the eggs for his cress heads.
Wasn't that kind of Nutmeg?
